Web Summit overview

Web Summit is Europe's largest tech conference – but it focuses on much more than tech. This November 6-9 in Lisbon, the world's most influential policymakers and heads of state, biggest sports stars and cultural icons will be among the 60,000 attendees at Web Summit, alongside the CEOs and founders of tech's most powerful companies.

In six years Web Summit has grown from 400 to 60,000+ attendees from more than 170 countries. No technology conference has ever grown so large so fast. Web Summit has become “Europe's largest and most important technology marketplace”. An unrivalled global meeting place for the world's most disruptive companies and those interested in how that disruption can transform their businesses and lives.

What we offer our media attendees:

Full access to Web Summit

Possibility of exclusive on and off-stage interview opportunities with our speakers, investors and startups

Hands-on support from our media team

Access to our dedicated media portal

- This is a one-stop shop for media at Web Summit to find all news about the event and speakers, information about startups, photos of the event, schedules and any other details they may need. We encourage media to use this to get the most of the event and the best stories.

Full access to the media village

- This is a hub where media can work and spend downtime. It's an exclusive area for media and speakers with food, desks, power cables and an area to relax.
- There will also be separate interview spaces, which can be reserved by media and speakers.
- Full press conference facilities.

Full access to Night Summit

- After talks finish, the networking continues at series of exclusive, specially curated night events, where our media attendees come together over a drink, cultural tours and more.

The image shows a large-scale event stage for Web Summit. The central focus is the 'web summit' logo, where 'web' is in white lowercase letters, 'summit' is in a larger white lowercase font, and the 'i' is replaced by three overlapping triangles in green, blue, and pink. The stage is illuminated with a grid of red and blue lights. In the foreground, the dark silhouettes of an audience are visible. To the left, a screen displays a 'Year in Review: 2011 in Photos' slide with a photo of a person. To the right, another screen shows a similar slide with a photo of a person. The overall atmosphere is high-tech and professional.

A conference for every industry

There's no such thing as a tech industry anymore - just industries that have been affected by tech. Web Summit reflects this. We've created 26 standalone conferences within Web Summit, each one focusing on a different industry, from marketing to sport, from SaaS to fashion, from sport to society, and everything in between. Your ticket to Web Summit gets you access to each.
